townsman.
F. F. Williams of Brooklyn made an ient speech in placing in nomination S. L. Woodford, After Senator Laughlin's speech nominating Mr. Beek of Buffalo, a ballot was ordered amid much excitement.

The result was: Fassett, 507; Becker, 55; Carr, 36; Wadsworth, 83 and White, 3.
Gen. Woodfard moved to make the nomination unanimous, and a wild cherns of "Aye" answered the putting of the question. the question.

the question.

When order was restored Congressman Raines, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, and James W. Husted were appointed a committee to notify Mr. Fassett of his nomination and to escort him to the convention. While they were on this mission Congressman Payne, the chairman of the committee, read the platform, which was, of course, adouted.

of course, adopted.

Mr Payne had finished when Messrs.
Raines, Woodruff and Husted marched into the Hall, and the booming of cannon outside, while the band played "See, the Conquering Hero Comes."

There was an intensely exciting scene as Mr. Pussett walked up the aisle and mounted the platform. The delegates stood on chairs and waved their bats and hundkerchiefs in the air. When matters calmed the nominee for Governor was presented.

presented.

Fassett made the speech of his life. He was as cool as a cucumber.

He dwelt upon the issues for which the Republican party stands to-day, and said that if elected be would faithfully bring them to a triumphant end, so far as lay in his power. Among other things he said that he would at once resign the yet it was thought that he was enjoying usual good health.

The ex-President was born at Mont-sons Vandrey, in the Jurs, Angust 15, 1997, was educated in the College of Poligney, studied law in Paris, took part in the revolution of July, 1830, and was employed to defend accused Radicals. He became a member of the Constituent Assembly in 1848, was on the Committee of Justice and Vice-President of the Assembly, and proved his ability as a speaker.

M. Grevy re-cutered the Assembly in 1890, and was chosen its president Feb. 19, 1871, resigning in April, 1873.

He was again made President of the Chamber in 1876, and was returned from the Jurn several times before, on Janu-

the Jurn several times before, on January 30, 1876, when Marshal MacMahon had resigned the Presidency of the Republic. M. Grevy was elected to this office for the term of seven years.

President Grevy was re-elected President, but resigned in 1887, on account of the notorious Wilson scandal in which
M. Grevy's son in law was proved to have been connected with the sale of State
